

Liberalism

August 7th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Liberalism is a competition to make its hierarchy in reality. It is the same method as the survival principle in nature.

But the possibility may not be denied. This is why there are no other choices than that.

We are away from them to close any possibility, so we chose liberalism. But any suffering is the basis of its systems.

And asking all requirements is accepted under competition. This is a reality of liberalism.

I am not saying liberalism is wrong, but it makes all sufferings.

This causes us to make choices for the world—new socialism as the world system with basic income.

These are the systems we are trying to avoid competition principle but sharing life for all peoples.

These are the dreams of the world with our sufferings. And we may propose a new world to all politics.

The fear-based need for survival can be resolved by providing a basic income and a guaranteed livelihood. This would suggest a new world model that is not based on fear.

Liberalism with possibility and communism without possibility were decisions of the world. As we are trying a new world, we need new systems. And we see we have a new philosophy with a world that is leaving from survival principle and any competition.

The world is leaving from fear, which guarantee survival, and we see it must progress from the past to the future, which we conquer any requirement for survival principle.