The world is in flux, demanding conflict and forging a new path. It's crucial that we, too, have a clear purpose and strategic plans for the future.

How can we participate in the world? We must have our world vision, which all nationalities and races must accept.

Military and economic factors are always the decisions of the world. Instead, we could access the world from a different point of view.

These are our world's visions, which are away from reality but ideals.

Power game and conflict must be instead by sharing new world visions.

When the world loses its guidelines and direction, and the justice of power reigns over these things, proposing a new world is the right choice.

What can we do for the world if we gather under the same vision, justice, and philosophy?

Conscience may doubt about the world today. We have made all new world designs from our office.

The world's meltdown may not be an illusion today. That causes us to work for the world.

We all may have a choice to face any reality of the world. We have insisted that choice is the future.

Only politics can work for reality, even to expand its future to the world. To be wise only makes it possible to be in touch with the future.

Power and justice are both sides of the reality. We have to work for both.
