

New argument at international society

January 2nd, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

All new discussions we are trying to seek in international society are about the style and reality of modernized reality.

We need proper analysis for reality. The presence of Western camps is all reality as they are trying to seek their new futures.

To reach any result, we need to ask for a way of all discussion, not with conflict and wars. So, we need to calculate and design the world itself.

Armed with theory and seeking dialogue with the world is undoubtedly what we desire, and it is a correct understanding that we are calling for participation in the world through consulting.

This is all the way we can decide the world. We need to know who has hopes for the future.

We may expand all these arguments to massive nations to share new consensus in the world, even if we are facing any world realities.

In modernized reality, people of all ages have a way to decide anything through discussions. But Russia, Iran, and China try to seek any decision through the military.

We have to know these are realities; we find any progress of self and realities in each society and livelihood.

To face all realities, we need the same measures and standards. That is an equal conversation to the world, and we have insisted we need all new talent.

If we seek a more civilized reality, we need to adjust reality under any of our new attitudes.

As we told you, politics must always lead the world.

