

New civilization and the future

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

The new world seeks all planned in the future. How could we handle them and pursue our future?

New technology makes it possible with contemporary reality and civilization. This is the right idea for us to seek our nation.

It is a myth that wealth is created through economic development. However, we must understand that proper social and lifestyle upbringing will give us this. These things make the reality of the future equally possible.

We have a choice. That is the truth. But all realities are complex. But the option is only to act. And that is only what we may find in the future.

We need our world vision. That only permits us to make the same realities.

And we also need all bases of new technology. That forces us to take further political action.

There is no way we can find out of all realities. Then what do we do? But the only thing we must know is to act anew.

World War 3rd may not be an illusion but a reality we have in the future. We need to be solid and only permitted to face the world.

Politics must make its strategy even now, have to make domestic affairs.

We have a worth to make our realities. That is the only possibility we could find a future.

New technology expands to military and society, life, and space participation. We find new possibilities with those. That means we have to shift our realities to new technologies.

Then we have a possibility we could stand equality to all realities.