With new diplomacy under the cabinet of President Trump, we can imagine new conflicts and the world's reality. That is all remarks we can work for the world.

We must shift our world vision to accommodate new changes. We need to cover the world's reality.

A new conflict structure will be given, but it is possible to propose reconciliation and the creation of a new world.

The world must change its reality. We may experience this change in the future. It is wise to take steps within the world to understand reality under its political judgment fully.

Conflict is the only reality we may find in the future. But we need to take responsibility for the world and the future. It may be our decision to participate in all realities.

There are differences between taking responsibility and going away from it. These are the attitudes we need to make to face the world.

New diplomacy is a way to cause new realities. And we need to guarantee the world and the future through our political actions.

We dare to seek a complete responsibility to the world; it is any reality we face with the world itself.

The world needs a new consensus and agreement to move forward. That is our entire proposal to the world.

And these are the new visions to seek a new world and our actions to take responsibility.
