

New philosophy with the new world system

August 28th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Creation of the future requires a new world system to make ourselves with new steps into the future.

These are based on new philosophy, as we find any system of the world rooted in Western philosophy, as they may be considered in their histories.

We may know that we have all new technology and systems, which will create a new world in the future.

But any social problems and social value must find their way in the future, which must be under construction of the new world system. If fairness and righteousness must be constructed in the world, we may know all these are based on the new world system.

Then, we could gather all human sources and talent from anywhere in the world and reconstruct the world based on new philosophies and systems.

The world is onto its own systems. They are the law and rules.

If we find all the fairness of its systems, we can find all the agreements of any nation, which must be the world with a new consensus.

All competition may be the basis of all conflict. So, the new system must be free of all competition but must hold up any ideals that have been held up throughout our history.

The new model is based on new world systems, which are all based on a new idea called new philosophies.

All these are the results of all the academic progress in all new talent and human sources. They have permission to recreate the world.