

New rules and systems for ethical judgment

November 15th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Governed by all the desires we have, capitalism and all its competition principles. But if we reconsider all the rules of the world through ethical principles, we may find a few doubts about them.

And anyone considering the new philosophy may find irony in its competition and survival principles, since we are the progress of the world.

Up to the next stage, these are the assignments we have with the world. New rules and systems may solve all its tasks.

Rules and systems are the recreation of all reality itself. And these are the result of our progress in intelligence.

We can see these are the challenges we face as we seek the future. And these are the new ways of redesigning the world.

Any core of all reality must seek its system and rules. And these are the decisions of the world itself.

Recalculating based on our progress in intelligence may find all new answers.

Under the world, by desires may reach himself to its irony. These are the reasons we may seek new answers.

We can see that these are the result of new philosophies. And the progress of any intelligence is the measure to judge all realities.

Liberalism, capitalism, free economic system, democracy, competition principle, and survival principle must be under calculated by its philosophy, and we may insist that new socialism may be all common to judge the world itself.