

New social Framework

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

New life and progress of ages seek a contemporary society. That is any effort of ours to pursue a future.

The past is dominated by survival demands and makes suffering a reality. The hope for the future creates a new society.

All new technology and system give new possibilities to shift any realities to the new world and the future.

All administrators must shift their system to a computer and IT systems. These are required in political agreements to provide livelihoods for all.

We could find that all these are new socialism on its base, and basic income could guarantee basic livelihoods.

Education could permit the new possibility of finding a life in the future.

All scientific progress can agree and create a world free of suffering and problems.

The solution to all poverty is to share basic life in a global agreement, and the world can propose that agreement in building a shared society.