

New world framework

February 17th, 2026

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The world has its system. In economic and military bases, we find systems. Even with all the diplomacy. We can recreate all new realities by proposing new systems.

A new world system must be agreed upon by nations under its voluntary agreement.

These are the dialogues we may share in international society, and these are the recreation of the world itself.

We have all chaos, but we need the future of the world. And all these are to reach an agreement and a new consensus which may renew the world.

We have all progress of any academics, and they have all new potentials to create new realities.

And we have a new contact with the universe, and they may propose to us all new technologies and systems, which may renew all social conditions to a new world.

How could we design the world in the future? We may have a decision and a new consensus to build all the next societies.

And these are only accepted under the leadership of all politics. And our progress may cause new futures.

New intelligence may be gathered from the whole world, and they may make their decision to create a new world under their progress and all their skills.

These are all calculations by all progresses. And they have a new possibility for the world.

New world design and systems must be considered and must be agreed upon by all representatives of all nations, and their agreement is a reality of the world itself.