

Next society

Oct 11th, 2023

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

With the creation of a new technological civilization and any contact with the universe, we are trying to create a contemporary society with a new philosophy as all academics progress with its use.

This is a further shift of any realities. That means we need a new political consensus.

Politics leads to a total change of any realities. We need a new vision of the nation and the society.

The plan could be considered, and we have a new creation of realities. We have a decision for the future.

This new society could be based on any academic consideration and use of them. Academics could seek the next society.

Creating a new reality by bureaucrats and academics is about constructing reality in terms of academicity. This academicity transfers the management of all reality to them, and the foundation becomes philosophy.

Urban planning is required to create the best living environment, and these must meet the absolute requirements of coexistence with nature and the birth rate of 2.0 children in France. On the other hand, creating a society based on these next-generation technologies and systems requires the enrichment of life.

And we have new space ages, and we need to prepare all its environment as technology and human sources.

And we must serve equal livelihood to all peoples in the nation. This political consensus could give us a new country.