

Next society

October 24th, 2023

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

All progress in technology and systems gives promise to the coming new society and life. We are in a challenge to create the future.

As we know, Mr. Peter Drucker says that the next society is based on a new philosophy with a contemporary society.

A society with a new system and digitalized reality could give us new efficiency. Even new energy sources could improve life in any field.

New transportation systems and technology that allow us to build new infrastructure may change any realities.

All academics permit new possibilities to shift to the future. All these are the reality we have today.

We have a promise with new futures. Even we have our further steps into the universe.

Politics and bureaucrats could make a new design of society. All revolutionary change we have today gives us a possibility to all progress of life and social systems, even in an administrative environment.

A new society could be considered with philosophy, system, and academics. Any field of reality, such as education, business, and society, could be changed under reconsideration of self.

All these are the opportunities and new possibilities we have in the future.

All these new possibilities could give us a dream in the future. And all decisions of politics may be realized in a new society.