

Our responsibility for all children

June 14th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Away from any benefit for self, but taking all its responsibility for all children. We can first share the world, which means that, as parents, we have many commonalities that may share the same vision of the world.

It is the responsibility of adults to pass on the world to the next generation of children. And this is how we can work and share the same ideas.

We are all aware of the world's current state, but we must take action against its harsh realities.

We can find any tragedy in the world, and more tragedies must be expected in the future. This may be all the reason we are trying to propose new world visions, even sharing new world principles.

And these may be a recreation and unification of any reality under the same consensus.

And we share the same point of view, which may lead to an agreement and create a new reality.

On the other hand, if we can share all responsibility for the world in all regions, we may agree on and hold the same world vision, which may be recalculated based on the progress of all academics.

The world must be tailored by conscience in any history of his, and it may only permit any way in the future.

Then the international conference may argue that the world and all its dialogue may share a new world itself.

We may know that these are the independence of the world from all the nights of reality.