

Political determination

December 29th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The strongest will is a determinant in politics to make a new world. And the progress of intelligence may help to realize it.

And these are the consensus of the international society which we may propose to the world.

Politics has only itself, with a decision about the world and the future. We have our consultations with the world on unique ideas.

We are trying to be in touch with a world that he has his changes today.

All new possibilities, the world expands its stage to the unlimited future and the universe. We can see that all academics are a ticket to the new futures.

We are facing the future and forced to make our decisions.

Redesigning the world, we have ideas to shift it toward new civilizations.

Technology is any tool we may build to create a new world.

Politics has its decisions to recreate the world under new hopes and wishes.

And a new future may be given under any new relationship with the universe, and they may propose a new future to us.

So all politics must require a new attitude for a new world.

And all these are only possible under new intelligence of the world, we have all the human resources with their dreams.

We are sending the new world to your decisions.

KURODA International