

Recreation of the world

January 29th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Under new dialogue, we may reach new consensus and make all reality new. These are agreements of new technological civilizations.

If the world reaches a new consensus and world principles, we may share it and realize a new world. These are any dialogue we find in the world and the future.

These proposals call for a new dialogue in international conferences and bilateral negotiations. These consensus-building projects will foster shared values and provide insight into reality.

If these are the only opportunities to find any future, we must consider and take new actions sincerely.

We may imagine that the world unified itself, asked for a new future under any cooperation, and shared the same future. And it may be possible under all new consensus of world politics.

We are entering a new era in which we are trying to expand our reach to the whole universe. Any entity from the universe may seek cooperation with Earth. We face new possibilities, and if politics makes decisions, we are given new futures.

We have a variety of world systems today, but seeking a new basis for the future, we can reconsider all world systems based on arguments and discussions by any nations on which we can agree and share new futures.

If the world is not occupied by part of groups, we may seek new ideals under any participation of nationality and races. And this could be new tails of the world in which we are recreating all existence but a new world.

We may insist on a new dialogue to reach a new agreement by all nations. It may also be possible to gain agreement from all countries. These are the ideas of conscience.