

Redesign all realities

January 29th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Recreation of the nation and society shifting to the next society may redevelop all domestic industries. These are the last opportunities for a nation to revolve domestic sectors.

We have all new investments to rebuild the next generated infrastructure under any progress of new technologies.

These are national projects that will create the future, and they will be realized through domestic industry. Furthermore, close collaboration between industry, academia, and government will recognize the best society and life after all discussions.

We will bring together the best talent from all sectors of the nation, have these talents design the new country and society, and have politicians make the wise decisions to make all of this a reality.

These will build self-defense against the digitalization of finance and global capital, and industrial development will provide independent capital and development in all industries.

These will dramatically develop domestic industries, gather as much capital as possible, build new infrastructure and political systems, and improve local communities. These will require a dramatic increase in efficiency and productivity. These will be the latest standards in the Next Society and realize social progress's expansion.

The creation of this technological civilization requires proper social infrastructure, lifestyle, and education, and it must also meet the demands of society, including the achievement of a birth rate of 2.0.

These are decisions made by the central government to eliminate all crime and build close cooperation and a favorable bidding environment with local governments.

These are the political decisions that make the whole nation new.