

Relief for vulnerable groups

Kuroda International
Takeshi Kuroda

Relief for the weak always takes precedence over everything. These are inevitably required to resolve all their suffering.

The politics demanded these understandings, and the provision of life can be made on the same basis.

Their immaturity cannot be denied because of their immaturity. Opportunities for social participation can be developed together with the social education environment.

These basic guarantees of life are possible under the basic income system. It also seeks the Supreme Court's definition of basic human rights, which proposes providing a virtual environment for housing and living as a political obligation.

Politics can do these along with transforming a new social system to create a contemporary society in the innovative IT revolution.

These are proposals for a new political self-definition. The reality is that politics makes it its duty to provide life to all its people. These make no exceptions and provide a basic life with basic human rights.

These are legitimate political challenges. This is because it is to realize the participation of all the people in the reality of the future in the current revolutionary social change and the transformation of the new technological system.

These are to prove that politics has a noble self-mission. This shows that it is right in its mission for politicians to have the most respect for themselves.