These are the definitions that people are not forced to be tools but human beings.

And society may ask for growth from above. These are the definitions of a righteous nation. Only then can new technology and systems be used by the nation.

Political morals may lead to all these circumstances.

The nation must accept any purpose of people in their lives. These must be the liberal camp's agreement.

Education is a learning of proper living. They must find their purpose in this environment, and politics must make their consensus with those.

Politics is given its health through explanation and dialogue with the people. The mission of politics is not to exploit the people under authoritarianism but to give them a better future.

A nation without dreams and hope is a nation where all people have stolen themselves. We need to give them a self and any reality under all our efforts.

We need to know all these are the consensus of humanism but not by lousy government.

Now, we have an equal standing point against international society and the Western camp. These permit us to have any conversation in the future.

Is there any conflict we have to ask for?

We are not afraid of any changes, but we have a dream of the future. These are our attitudes toward you, and for us to share the same future.
