A hopeless world must be replaced by one filled with all people's dreams and hopes. There is all curiosity you may find, that is, I said, for all people and all beings.

These are the proper ideas and actions of all politics since politics is for everyone.

What could we find to see all the pain and suffering of the world? And what is an idea for all children?

Politics has a decision to make the world. And we have to ask what your decision is.

Politics have a complete responsibility to the people and the world. That is all bases we could seek for the recreation of any realities.

Backing to all realities, what can we find in the livelihoods of all people? That is all the duty of politics that we could find truth.

The decision is equally founded by the coming future of its realities. King may have his conclusion that what I do insist.

We may imagine that all people are served high-trend livelihoods with all new technology; even livelihood is guaranteed by basic income.

To be served in the same environment with livelihood for all peoples, we now have new technology and systems that permit all our dreams to the new future.

Politics is trying to take full responsibility for all people and asking for new futures.

All these are the consensus we could share with politics and a new world with hopes for all the people we are trying.
