

Shift to the future under next-generation standards.

December 24th, 2023

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

New society with a new standard. Progressed technology gives full use to a reality That must be common in the future. That means we are taking further actions to create the future.

All these are possible under political consensus to determine self and shift reality to a new standard.

As though we are trying to ask for all new possibilities in the universe. Above all, new technology must be based on academic progress.

These are the shift from the analog ages to the new digital society. All these are based on academic environments and creations from all industries.

New social systems, all environments, and infrastructures are giving us the creation of the future.

Politics may promise them all. Do an action, and then you have a new future.

All these could be based on political decisions and consensus. They could promise us reality in the future since Any design may be realized under action and plans.

As we see, new social systems must be given from all academic considerations. Righteous reality is the correct answer. We could base all reality on the future.

We have all choices on how we could create the nation. And the future is only as itself we have under our choices.

We are trying all our steps into the new future. As I insist, we have all the decisions with them.