

Shift to the next generation

March 24th, 2025

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

All new systems allow us to create the future. From all these perspectives, we have a choice to make all things new.

We may find the possibility of all new progress as we now have all the changes of all realities. We have all the permission to recreate the world to new civilizations today.

This is why we need a new design of the world under any determination of all politics. All new talent may share its recreation of all realities.

At this moment, we have all the progress of academics in any field. We can see that academics may reconsider all the realities of society and a nation to create new systems.

We may know that we have all changes in any field of society today, which is the creation of new realities under new technologies of its economy.

It mainly has all its excitement in business as all massive capital asks for new technologies.

We may find that the world requires a new world system as all its social systems. They are the basis for any society.

The key is a new standard that reconsiders any reality called the next generation. We need to consider all the necessities of the world and the society's requests. These are all the reasons we are trying to provide new systems.

Under all these points of view, politics must determine itself in the future.

W

e

KURODA International

a

r

e