

Simultaneous issuance of denominations and transition to digital currency

November 28th, 2023

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Reducing the national finances to zero debt will simultaneously return to sound national finances and transition to digital currency, realizing a transition to a next-generation society with new spending.

All these are the last opportunities we could have to work for the national debt. The soundness of the national environment must be based on the soundness of national finance conditions.

All these allow new national spending under new cost standards, creating a new technological civilization inland.

Changes in currency rates must be controlled by interest rate policy. All these allow new construction of the nation under national plans. All these also seek for all national soundness in any realities.

We must also ask for the acceptance of all international societies. So we need political effort on the other hand.

Building national health is the solution to all realities and the only thing that makes the future possible.

We must know that the denomination is the last opportunity to achieve sound national finances. And all these bases are any bases of the nation as we are trying to seek for the future.