

Survival and competition

November 18th, 2025

Kuroda International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Survival and competition are the all reality and rule in the past and today. But if philosophy and intelligence may find new world systems and idea we may find any possibility of the new world.

We have to know these are the any result of our progress. We all have its history but facing a new future today.

All these are the shift from the past to the next society. And today we have all progress of any technologies which have all use for new society and life.

And all these may come with a new consensus of the world. And surely it may create a new world itself.

These are the vision of new socialism that we are away from all competition and requirement of survivals.

These are the new world system and agreement which permit us to redesign the world.

And these are the argue which we require to make new dialogue to the world.

And these are the vision which we may propose to all international societies.

And these may be all agreement of all world politics which we can share all new cooperation to make all things new.

These are how we may try to seek its shift to the next society. And we have all progress of any academics which permit us to recreate all reality to a new world.

We are forcing to ask all your decision. We do not have time to the future.

KURODA International

