Instead of tears we have in all history, we are trying to propose dreams. That is as hope we know. And it is a duty of all politics.

We could find all tears in any history, but we may ask a question: how is the future?

All new technology and systems have new possibilities in the world. A new world system and framework could make the world new.

All weak have only tears in history. We have had wars in the past on this planet.

But we may know that we have a choice in the future. Choice and decision surely make the future itself.

How could we value all these tears? But we all know the means. This is a unique irony.

As the number of tears, we may seek for all its dreams.

There is the recreation of the world because we need a future. And we need a dream within.

If all people reach their dreams, what is the difference in the world we see?

With the amount of tears, we have a right to dream a future. And the world must give us an answer.

Any tragedy is filled in all history as a tear, but we have a choice for the future. That is all our necessity.

As we know, the choice determines the future. We need our word to the world to make it better than the history.
