Have power games been our only reality in the past? Where can we uncover justice in this complex web of global power dynamics? These are questions that demand our attention as we navigate the realities of today.

All these power balances failed in terms of industry and military progress. Under all these circumstances, only we can find the future.

While we may envision a future brimming with hope and promise, it is crucial to remember that we cannot detach ourselves from the stark realities that surround us.

Let me try to consider any possibility of asking for help from the way to the future.

If liberalism is only mind control from Langley. What will we have to do in the future? What should be the possibility we have today?

If wealth and power are the only reality all people seek from, what should be our decisions?

Good sense and conscience must seek to combat self-deception and hypocrisy.

The above must be the proper decision of all politics.

The world without a dream is filled with disappointment. And if mind control is the only reality, as we see with the Matrix, what should be our decisions?

These are the nightmares before Christmas if we are promised a millennium as described in the bible.

Be my guest, and I will lead you in the future. These are all our efforts from our office to the world.
