

The Reality of National Independence and Subordination

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Independence gives own possess and own design. Subordination provides from the others and its possess.

We have all reality under all these calculations with a world. If we are trying to build up our nation, we need the right choice.

Independence means all reality must be under own effort, not provided by others.

Any step must be owned that cause all reality must be held. If the self possesses the nation. That requires own effort,

Subordination only follows the others. All these show us that we need a determined mind to face any realities.

If we have independence, we are allowed own foreign affairs. This must be the right choice to put any steps into the world.

If we are wise, we must know that independence is our only choice.

The independence of a nation is the independence of its people. So this has more than any worth.

The health of a nation inevitably depends on this. Dependence, on the other hand, is an apparent skewness.

Who owns them if we ask for a step to the future? That is all means of independence.