We have a future that may be created by new technology. How could we create new realities and lives?

We have a choice, and politics may determine the future. Technology is given under any circumstances by all environments and academic bases.

We would see that all new weapons from the US Army. How could we expect them under the use of them? All those are the realities we have at the age of today.

We must catch up and need more of them. All these prove that we must prepare for any condition and environment. Political consensus could give us the future.

Academic and cooperation with them could give a reality. Politics must provide us with the visions of the future. Those are the plans we have to do our best.

Foreign affairs may be cooperated and share any possibilities. We have new standards called Society 5.0 and Industry 4.0. All these are collaborated with industry. And politics must be needed with its lead.

The educational environment as a university must change itself to adjust to the reality of the future. We need the right vision.

How could we build the future? As we spend ourselves today, that gives us a future. That is what we have to know.

We may redesign our nation, and we need proper fundamentals.

The new alliance could be based on the new reality of a nation. These are suitable for all world politics.

The decision is a direction to the future that is all under politics.
