

The dream and the future

March 14th, 2024

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Where can we find a dream? In the past, all dreams must be stolen. How can we decide the future?

As we have wars in Ukraine and the Gaza Strip, all dreams are stolen. So, politicians must act and give us a word for all children.

Where can we find conscience in all the realities of today? As we face Captain America, we must seek heroes in history.

How can we teach all children to dream of themselves? Do any crimes force the dreams?

Then, we find that we must make the proper choices for the future. That is a duty of politics. We need a hero like Mr. John F. Kennedy.

Who may not run away from all yes of peoples of the world? He has a word with truth.

These are all requirements of any politics. That is only a possibility we may find in the future.

We may dream of a world that permits and is filled with all our dreams. We find a truth politics has them under their steps into the future.

Politics has a duty to the world and its future. Democracy is a law of the world today, and we have our choices in the future.

And who can promise their dream to all children? This must be all duty of politics.

We have a choice; that is a future we must know.

