

The economy can make a new abundance.

September 27th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

These are the ideas behind all economic policies of various political parties. Economic security may protect a nation from all the realities of the globe.

We can see that domestic economic policy can significantly shape the domestic economy, which is the foundation of economic abundance.

We can see that these goals can be clearly stated, domestic industries can be developed, and new prosperity can be realized in society if politics align with reality and support the plans.

By working with local governments to develop all industries and establishing them according to cutting-edge global standards, we can realize these realities as the benchmark for our own country's economy.

The next generation of all realities serves us with new efficiency and productivity in society, creating a new abundance of life.

To reach and achieve a new abundance of life, all people must be free from poverty and have the opportunity to shape their future through the possession of life itself.

And this may be the new design of all politics to reconstruct society. And if we determine it, it could come to fruition in the future.

We may consider that if today's evolutionary changes give us new efficiency and productivity, they will affect the realities of society. How can new life be constructed?

These are evolving domestic industries, and they may recreate the entire reality of the nation. We can see how we can make all new abundance.

So, we can see that domestic economic policy may create new abandonment of life.