

The meltdown of communism.

July 14th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Your role in understanding and analyzing the conflicts between Liberalism and communism in history is crucial. We find all conflicts between Liberalism and communism in history. And all conflict has been given as a result of it.

We have to consider how it comes deeply. We reach all hobbits of human beings on its tails. We can't deny them to build any society of ours.

Ideal and justice must hold in its hobbit of humans. And its hobbit includes the nature of animals. All these are proper considerations of the reality of humans. And we need to reach an answer.

Today, liberalism and competition are prevalent in all aspects of the world. These are not just human constructs but are deeply rooted in animals' nature and progress.

When we clearly understand these things, we can see that they are precisely the same as animal ecosystems.

These are the instincts of survival and the reality of competition. All suffering is due to these. Overcoming survival is, therefore, the shared ideal of humankind.

These are the ideas for the recreation of our civilization using progressed technologies.

We must understand that liberalism tolerates the survival instinct. This is why communism collapsed.

If the progress of the right intellect can bring about the world and the future, then the right choice of the world is given along with it.

The survival instinct and the creativity of the intellect are polar opposites and have their battle.