

The mission of politics is to provide a future for all citizens.

March 27th, 2024

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Any citizens must reach their future. As you may ask, what the duty of politics is. That it is.

And how can we find the future of citizens? Any action of politics is that.

So, any political effort creates the future of any citizen in a nation. So that citizen has their decision and judgment. It must be a proper understanding of democracy.

We are taking all new steps into the universe, and new technology gives us all its imagination for a new future.

We have a choice for the future. And who leads them all? That must be all politics.

And this is the only way all people find their future. And all these duties may be the mission of politics.

How all people could reach them in the future? That means politics have a sacred mission within yourself.

To serve livelihoods and the future, these are the measure of progress of the nations. These are done with political effort.

Then we see politics may lead to any reality in a nation under its consensus and actions.

Any academic progress may be all tails of reality as all people may be in touch with their future.

How may all people find their future? We need all conversations with any citizen. And if all citizens' exceptions are served, politics may be valued rightly.

If the dream is a truth in a nation, what can we do for the people and make our nation?

