

The necessity of a national framework

February 20th, 2024

KURDA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

Society and lives are based on the reality of the nation. The political environment and their plan and actions create the future.

And the economy gives all reality to the people. Military faces top trend of reality. To reach top trends and reality permits us to spend ourselves in time.

There is all progress in the world. We need to have an idea to recreate ourselves in the future.

Fundamental is all bases that are called society and live as all conditions of politics. Any determination of politics gives reality in the future. Plans and actions cause all, really.

The rationality framework of reality comes with society and political systems and bases. Righteous society is the basis for finding the future and all its political consensus and morals. We need to know how the West makes its top presence globally. They are from their conscience of them. That is what we are following.

We may calculate all reality; a proper social system may permit all new steps into the future.

And these are all efforts from politics. All new potentials in the world are called a future.

We need the right to act with the future, which is a recreation of our nation.

All fundamentals are equally required in all history. These are with society and livelihoods. They don't come with differences, and all systems and technology make more than any progress of those.

We do have a choice for the future. That causes the future itself. This is all the duty of politics.

How could we miss any possibility we have today? We need the right to act against the world.