

The new world map

April 18th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

The collapse of the international principle may lead to a new world. Not all conflicts must be resolved, but we can propose new world principles.

These are the ways we are striving to create a new world. We see that this new world consensus may require new realities.

When the world ends, the future begins. So, this is a time when we work for and may be allowed to make all for our future.

Consensus may seek a new agreement, and a deal gives the world a new reality, called a new future.

We find that all politicians make all their decisions, so they are the king of the world.

We have all new staff, which allows us to redesign the world. In this new world, any hopes may be realized.

We can find the new millennium in the bible. The next society may ask for a new philosophy on its tail and new socialism to build its next society with all new systems and technologies.

Dialogue is the way we find the future. And these are any basis of new consensus and international principles. This is how we can find the future.

These are ways we can reach out to share the same world. If we are gifted a new leader, they may promise to realize all our hopes and dreams since we now have all the basis, which is all prepared by all the progress and changes of the world.

Under all these circumstances, we have a choice: to go in any new direction for the future.