These are double standards of any reality we have in the world. And unification of the world may be gathered under the pole of the United Nations. They may uphold all the world's ideals.

These are reconstructions of the world under all its governments, as judged by their justice. All people may find new hopes, but we may not follow them.

People may not rule these out. It may be an idealized world with its justices.

And these are the final countdown, which we may finally find the reality of the world.

They may propose a new world which may be concluded with all new technology, with all recreation of lifestyles.

How can we cause harm to the new paradise? Instead, these are the paradises that are proposed to the world. But it may be served only to those who are selected.

And we are facing a new elite who have the same ideals for the world. And truly, they have a world of their own.

These are the unification of the world and its world government. All history may be ended by the unification of the world, alongside justice and ideals.

We may have a choice in how we participate in the new world. They may try to make all their new steps into the universe.

There may not be any failure of all those realities, so there is no possibility we can judge them.

But instead, we may propose our world. Only a difference if we are trying to lend a hand to all socially vulnerable people.
