

The new world with a new society

April 18th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

New technology allows for all progress in efficiency and productivity. They create an abundance of new life.

All these are the new breath of the next society, which is based on a new philosophy and uses all the progress of new technologies.

We may find that these are totally separated from any of the past but the future itself. These shifts and changes reach all possibilities for participation in the universe.

Any confidence and progress may be found in the future, using new technologies. And new systems must be in common in all these shifts of reality.

All these ideas may lead us to redesign the world by creating new infrastructure and hardware, based on the new consensus of society.

These are not habits that continuously move forward into the future, but our self-determination.

And we can all find all our hopes in those realities. Compared with any reality of the past, we finally see all the possibilities of the world and new futures that serve us all our new dreams.

We have a new dialogue with the world, and we may reach an answer that clearly explains all progress in academics.

So we need the new global consensus, which may be an agreement of all our hopes to recreate the world's reality.

Under all these points of view, we may gather all new talent and human resources from all over the world, which may share in recreating the world itself.