

The next society

March 22nd, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

These are new principles in a new society. We have a choice to make the next society.

We need all new systems and frameworks. Finance and the economy must be the foundation of all new realities and must be present to create all new societies.

We can use the progress of academics, which permits us to realize new societies.

We can see that all futures must be based on new principles and systems, enabling us to create a new society by utilizing the latest technologies.

We need the cooperation of the nation's human resources, who are eager to share their skills and abilities for the country's benefit.

The economy is fundamentally based on creating new technological realities by utilizing advancements in new technologies and systems.

We have all its digitalization of realities, and new efficiency and productivity create an abundance in all aspects of reality.

However, we need to separate ourselves from any conflict and competition, while also pursuing a new way of life.

We need new investment to rebuild all our infrastructures and evolve all domestic industries, which must cover next-generation technologies and systems.

Standardization of any system may be shared with the next society and all of these are governed by regional administration through the latest computer systems.

We need a new philosophy based on any new society and the creation of all the latest changes. These are all new decisions of all politics.