

The principle of liberalism and desire

November 28th, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

We have all new elites with huge wealth today in the world. But we need to know that they are seeking the benefit and profit for themselves. These are accepted under liberalism.

There is little doubt about all realities, since we have a responsibility for the world and the future.

The world with desire contains all conflict. And the benefit is for all beings. But these are the realities of liberalism today.

These are the reasons we have doubts about current world systems. But we could propose a new world which is based on a new philosophy and systems.

If the desire is a law of all realities, how do we find our ideas against the world? But today's excitement in the world has similarities.

As we have insisted, all these have roots in survival principles. And it contains competition principles. These are the basis of the reality and law of history and the world.

To shift to the future, we may have an idea of new world systems.

And these are how we propose to reach new cooperation and consensus in the world. It could cause a new world that we may wonder at and try.

By causing a new reality, we are trying to offer new ideas. These are any considerations by new philosophies.

And new dialogue may be given under any progress of all humanity. And this progress may create the future itself.

KURODA International

