

The rational political choice

December 23rd, 2025

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Ethical decisions may not be wrong in politics, and they give us a calculation of world realities.

And under all progress of humanity, we may reach a new consensus and agreement, which may be a promise of the future.

New dialogue of the world may ask for a new attitude. These are the conversations we may reconsider the world and create new ideas about the world.

Any progress of humanity may reach this conversation. We are trying to reach the same ideas which may be the future and the world itself.

It is true that the progress of intelligence may offer a new world itself. These are the talents and all abilities from any nation to share all these dialogues.

In the international society, world politics must be serious for all new dialogues. Because these are the decisions of the world and the future.

There must be the same design of the world which we all can share. And it may realise itself under all agreements of world politics.

A new future is lying right in front of us all. So we need our decisions, which may be the decision of the world itself.

We may have all kinds from any region and nations. They have made their decision for all their realities.

But if we may reach a new consensus and agreement, it may give us a new world itself.

We have our challenge for a new future.