

The reality of Elon Musk's government efficiency and President Trump's attraction of cutting-edge industries to his country gives us a new nation of the next generation.

December 23rd, 2024

KURODA International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

Many people disparage President Trump, but his policies do not necessarily need to be disapproved of when viewed in light of the reality of change in the new future.

Indeed, America has always sought to be on the cutting edge. The appointment of Elon Musk to the Trump Cabinet promises new realities of government efficiency.

President Trump's efforts to attract cutting-edge industries to the country are paying off today. As their cutting-edge industries seek a future with a free economy, their new future is expected to amaze the world.

These things mean the collapse of the existing system in the world.

We may know that a new future with the next society may not be an illusion, but their action promises it in the future.

We may know that the world faces a challenge of the future, which makes us shift to a new future.

We must admire their pioneering spirit in this. Their financial system and the reality of the economy rightly demand an understanding of them.

In these realities, the fables of the ant, the grasshopper, the tortoise, and the hare may be given to them.

It is valid with today's ages that those away from changes may not reach the future.

President Trump must dream of his world, one in which we are required to make the right decisions and choices.