

The reality of the new economy and system

Kuroda International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

The deterioration of national finances and the transition to digital currencies can predict the birth of a new global economy in a new economic system in the future.

Fiscal bankruptcy in each country will drive the transition to a new economic system, and we can predict the birth of a new global economy led by the Western camp.

On the other hand, some high-tech industries are clearly looking to the future.

These are Anglo-Saxon missions to explore the creation of their ideal world.

These are clearly required to be opposite poles, and as the third pole, we propose forming a group in a new world.

These seek to group the world in the economy, and security in the economy proposes self-grouping in the free trade system.

On the other hand, there is the new reality of World War III. These are required to build a self-presence as well as form a self-group.

We all share the building of a next-generation society based on advanced technology and realize participation in the world based on self-reality and new diplomatic proposals.

Together with a new relationship with the universe, these seek to respond to reality. These are proposed as self-response to the fact that all truths are correlated and the future of change exists.

These propose the future by completing industry and the military in their own group and confronting reality.