

The world and its decision

November 12th, 2024

Kuroda International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

We have a future, and the king decides to make a new world and the future. All these are efforts for us to be in touch with the world as we try to make consulting of it.

We must agree on a new global framework, which will be agreed upon by all representatives of all nations.

These propose a gradual transition towards world unity. It allows for a certain degree of autonomy for individual states, non-interference in their internal affairs, and discretion for their heads of state.

But, asking for all its reality, we need the consensus and agreement of all nations shifting to new work systems.

We may ask who makes the decision. King always makes his own decisions for the world.

This gradual shift to a unified world governance system will establish unified world governance based on majority rule and a foundation of consensus.

Along with UN reform, these propose a new global framework.

These realities also come with the agreement of all nations declaring their participation in space and joining the reality as new members.

The agreement to provide equal upbringing and learning environments for all children will enable us to agree on a new framework for the world.

It also proposes creating a new world through consensus-building, such as a new global system with an agreement on zero emissions.

These are proposals to the world's new leader to share their dreams with the world.