

The world design

January 31st, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

We could propose a future. How could we design a new world?

The use of all new technology and systems makes it shift with all realities. We are trying to build a new technological reality as a new world.

These are under any design and decision of Politics. Collaboration between industry, academia, and government is determined to recreate the world as a nation.

These require design and planning within the bureaucracy and, with a clear consensus, the creation of a new world.

These will once again realize self-industry development in all fields and, together with administrative planning, will construct new social systems and develop infrastructure.

We have an idea that all new technology makes a society new. And more than all new possibilities could benefit us in the future.

As we see, academics and industry may base all new realities, so we need the right political plan and consensus.

Stepping out of Earth, we see a new reality under new cooperation with the universe. We are in the age of Aquarius.

We have all new remarks that are a new technology and academic progress. They have a use for new society today.

These should be a national project to seek for its future. And any human resources must be gathered to rebuild all reality anew.

We have determined ourselves in a new future. We are trying to send a new consensus.