

The world under new world systems

September 13th, 2024

KURODA International Consulting

Takeshi Kuroda

We have all world systems under liberalism and humanism. We may reconsider all world systems to seek a new future in economy and society.

These are the conversations of the new philosophy. Any basis of reality is any progress of philosophy and all academics we may know.

Liberalism, which allows for full freedom of decision and choice, and Authoritarianism, which denies such freedoms, are two contrasting forces that shape the reality of our world.

Academics, across various fields, play a crucial role in driving progress and change. Their calculations and analyses are instrumental in shaping a new world.

This world may ask philosophical arguments and all discussions to seek a new future. We have made progress in socialism here on earth.

We find now that the world system is based on all these progress of academics and philosophy.

All these are any talents of the world that progress and have all the skills and abilities of the future and the world.

Any world fundamentals are any progress of all these academics and philosophies.

Competition is all tails of the world, which even causes conflict and wars. But we have a choice to seek the world without competition.

All new technology seeks a new world under our free economic system with a system of all economics. But we may reconsider all systems.

To conquer all survival principles, we may reach the world without sufferings. But we may know survival is a definite requirement and contains any world reality.