If the world may collapse, it may have a reason. The world reality is that all power balances with any ideology and reality.

Military balance is the reality we may find in the world if we put ourselves into a political field.

Reality gives us the truth that only power is permission to seek any realities. But any new world principles and consensus may give us a new world.

And dialogue may reach us an answer. These are any proposals to the international society, and from the presence of the Western camp to new cooperation among all nations.

We may know that the conscience of the West gives the world peace, but seeking the truth of all reality, we need to make our decisions.

Dialogue may seek an answer and any agreement that permits sharing and creating a new world.

And all these are required in international politics.

These are more than any possibilities we are facing. That is the future itself. We have new eras with new technologies.

And the universe may open its doors to all residents of the Earth.

Above all, we need all new political decisions that may agree on new world systems.

All these conditions may allow us to recreate the world itself. And all these are only possible under political decisions.
