When the self seeks the slightest self-interest, it loses the world. Reality has its fair share and allows fairness. Getting the big picture is possible only in honesty.

Any calculation is the only way to catch any realities. Then we may have the right decision. This is a law of a normal person.

If we try to possess the world, we are permitted to face reality.

The skill of wisdom and knowledge is the way to compete in any reality.

We may not find any answers without reality.

The idiot may only follow justice but reality.

In history, the reality is always an answer from which all wise are learning.

If justice gathers all people's agreement, they may take the world.

This is the contrast between Popularism and power politics. These are both from the CIA, which is all irony of the world.

You may not insist that you are the king. He must have proof that to possess the world.

These are the laws we may find in any history. That means the world it was as it is has a winner and a loser.
