

To govern the world

June 3rd, 2025

Kuroda International Consulting LLC

Takeshi Kuroda

All these are to take full responsibility for any realities. And any right is equally served against all its responsibilities. These are the righteous world under righteous governance.

And we may know that all politics must address all these realities. And trying to take all the responsibility for all people.

These are how we are trying to recreate the world, and we are willing to take any responsibility for the world and the future.

And these could be an agreement of all politics, and any new dialogue may be under all its consensus.

As if we may create a new reality, it may affect all people under our consensus itself. We may imagine how the world may be changed under all new realities.

We have a choice, which is how we face all people in any decision.

On the other hand, we could throw away all responsibility and seek our own profit. But it may not be a king if we need to seek its responsibility.

We have an idea that under all these circumstances, how could we imagine the world?

Under all duties of politics, we need full responsibility for the world itself.

Under an enslaved reality, there must be differences, but seeking all responsibility, we have a different world in the future.

And we are seeking those who will make all decisions and create a new world.

