

Transition to the World Unity Government and Development of Standardize Social Infrastructure

Kuroda International

Takeshi Kuroda

The construction of a new world with the participation of excellent bureaucrats of all nations will realize its high cost efficiency and common social development in advanced technology in all regions.

These will realize the construction of a new world under the consensus of all nations.

In addition, the abolition of the military and the transition to the Earth Defense Force will improve the military in advanced space technology in cooperation with space.

The construction of these new worlds will bring about a transition to a unified government in the abandonment of state in all nations.

Standardization in Basic Income achieves global unification and standardization.

These, along with the declaration of participation in space, will create a new future in collaboration with space.