We are trying to shift to the next society based on the new communication system. And we have a decision with politics that makes a reality with a new transportation system.

We find all core cities in the region. They must be linked under all new infrastructures, and the decision is to create the next society in the areas.

This new political consensus could create a new reality. And this could unify Eurasia's land with all new agreements.

And industrial alliances could be changed under all these cooperations. China must be caged to be trooped under the reality we have today.

All digitalized reality included with the money system could be shared with all these regions.

Any difference under all these consensus could be found in diplomacy and power balance.

Eurasia land could be the core of the world in the next generation. And we are trying to make them a reality.

All these are needed by consensus and alliances. Politics may make them a reality.

Asian union could lead them to the future, and we could find a difference in the world's reality.

These are the ideas to face the reality of today's world. We are trying to make a way to the future.

But one last thing: military and capital may not be ignored in any way. Decisions could not be made with justice and ideals, even with a dream. That means we need to face the reality. Realists may only ask for the future.
