

New corporate environment in CSR

Kuroda International

Takeshi Kuroda

Corporate social participation enables the realization of a new corporate philosophy of equity capital. They realize corporate behavior not limited to industry in cooperation with society.

These are to enable companies to carry out social activities with their own capital, which is not for profit.

These allow businesses to achieve social participation for new purposes such as politics, social activities, entertainment and academic progress.

Contribution to society is the fulfillment of responsibilities as a civil society, and participation in new objectives allows businesses to create new realities in their philosophies.

The creation of these new worlds is a new trend in the economy. The company is a profit body. It is not about proposing responsibility as a civil society.

These responsibilities and consideration are to do oneself in the responsibility and consideration in having a life in society.

These new socialisms have the construction of a new economic system.